Jack Has the Flu

Jack 得了流感

On Monday morning, Jack did not get out of bed. His face was pale, and he felt dizzy. "Mom, I feel sick," he said. His mother touched his forehead. "You have a fever," she said. "Let's go to the clinic."

At the clinic, Dr. Chen looked at Jack's throat and listened to his chest. "Do you have a cough?" she asked. "Yes, and I have a sore throat too," Jack said in a weak voice. Dr. Chen smiled. "Don't worry. It's just the flu. Take this medicine three times a day, drink a lot of water, and get some rest."

Jack stayed home for three days. He slept a lot and ate warm soup. By Thursday, his fever was gone, and he felt strong again. "I want to stay healthy," Jack told his mom. "From now on, I will wash my hands more often and go to bed early." His mom laughed. "Good idea, but first, finish your homework!"
