Sorry, Kevin

對不起，凱文

October 3. I still feel bad about what happened today. Kevin and I are best friends. This morning, I forgot to bring our group report to school. It was my job to print it. Kevin was angry and said, "You always forget things!" I felt embarrassed in front of everyone. Then I blamed him. I said he never checked anything. We did not talk for the rest of the day.

After school, I sat on the MRT and thought about it. I realized that I was wrong. Kevin did not forget anything. I did. I worried that he would hate me now. I imagined him sitting with other friends tomorrow. That frightened me more than a bad grade. I wished I could go back to the morning.

At night, I sent Kevin a message. I wrote, "I'm sorry. It was my mistake. Please forgive me." I doubted that he would reply. But ten minutes later, my phone rang. "It's OK," Kevin said. "I'm sorry too. I was too loud." I guess good friends can survive a bad day. I will remember this lesson. Tomorrow, I will print the report first.

文法與句型 Grammar

S + wish + (that) + S + could + V

wish 表示「但願」，用來說與現在事實相反的願望，子句的動詞要用過去式，所以 can 要改成 could。

I wish I could fly like a bird.

我真希望能像鳥一樣飛。

S + realize + (that) + S + V

「發現、領悟到…」，realize 後面接 that 子句，說明領悟到的內容，that 可以省略。

He realized that he was on the wrong bus.

他發現自己搭錯公車了。
