Notice: Sunrise Hike Rescheduled

公告：日出健行改期

To all members of the Outdoor Club: Because of the weather forecast, this Saturday's sunrise hike to the summit of Mt. Qixing has been moved to Saturday, November 15. The Central Weather Administration expects heavy rainfall and thunderstorms over northern Taiwan this weekend, and the mountain trail, which was damaged by a landslide in September, becomes dangerous when it is muddy. The safety of our members comes first.

Please note the following for the new date. We will meet at Jiantan MRT Station at 3:30 a.m. The air at the top is often freezing before dawn, even when the city feels mild, so bring a warm jacket in addition to your raincoat. Humidity is high in the mountains, and a thick mist frequently covers the path until the sun rises, so a headlamp is required. If the sky is clear, we will watch the sunrise from the summit and see the skyscrapers of Taipei appear on the horizon.

The club also reminds everyone of our environmental rules. Yangmingshan is a national park, and its volcanic hills, hot springs, and wildlife must be preserved for future hikers. Do not leave litter anywhere, not even fruit peel. Stay on the paved trail, since stepping on the grass damages the plants that hold the damp soil together. Finally, please respect the quiet surroundings; the animals that live there are not used to loud music.

Members who cannot attend on the new date may receive a refund from Ms. Kao in the student affairs office before November 10. We apologize for the inconvenience and hope to enjoy a chilly but beautiful morning with you on the 15th. The Outdoor Club Committee
