Feedback on My First English Speech

我第一次英語演講的回饋

Dear Kevin, Thank you for sending me the video of your speech, "Why Teenagers Ought to Sleep More." I watched it twice last night, and I am writing to give you some feedback before the city contest on Saturday. First of all, your introduction was excellent. You greeted the judges warmly, mentioned your nickname, "Sleepy Kevin," and made everyone laugh. A good greeting like this makes the audience want to listen, so keep it.

Your English was fluent, and your grammar was almost perfect. However, there are two things that could mislead your listeners. In the second paragraph, you used the idiom "hit the sack," but you did not explain it. Some judges may misunderstand you and think you are talking about a bag! Furthermore, when you said "studies show that," you did not say which studies. A persuasive speaker always informs the audience where the facts come from; otherwise, people may think you are talking nonsense.

Nevertheless, I was impressed by the way you tried to persuade the audience with real examples instead of empty phrases. The story about your sister falling asleep on the MRT was obviously the best part. Moreover, your voice was clear, and you did not murmur even once, which is a great improvement.

Here is one more suggestion. Near the end, you said, "Parents never understand." This phrase may imply that all parents are the enemy, and some judges might interpret it as an insult. Change it to "Parents do not always understand," and you will sound polite and persuasive at the same time. I believe you will do well. Please inquire at the office if you need a quiet room to practice. Indeed, I am proud of you. Best wishes, Ms. Lin

文法與句型 Grammar

S＋V ..., which＋V ...（非限定關係子句補充說明前面整句）

逗號後的 which 可以代替前面整個句子的內容，用來補充說明或評論。文中 you did not murmur even once, which is a great improvement 的 which 指的是「你一次也沒有含糊不清」這件事。

He finished the race, which surprised everyone.

他跑完了比賽，這讓大家都很驚訝。

祈使句, and＋S＋will＋V

「做某事，你就會……」。前半是祈使句，後面用 and 連接表示結果；若用 or 則表示「否則」。文中 Change it to ..., and you will sound polite 就是這個句型。

Practice every day, and you will become fluent.

每天練習，你就會變得流利。
